GENERAL DESILITY, AND ALL RELEASE TIONS.

110.NS.

11k. DE JONGH, an eminent Dutch physician, has, as is well known, devoted himself for upwards of sixteen years to a series of scientific researches into the nature and properties of Cod Liver Oil. His works recording these investigations have been translated into most of the European languages. By nutversal admission they are regarded by the fausity as the student antherity upon the subject; and in addition to the spontaneous approval and highly flattering testimonials from some of the most distinguished medical men and scientific chemists of

ITY OF THE ROYAL SANITARY POLICE OF THAT KINGLOM.

By De Jough's claborate chemical investigations and theraputical experiments with the several kinds of Cod Liver Oil, neve demonstrated the superior efficacy of this pure LiGHT BIGUN OIL, which effects a cure, relieves symptoms, and also lates suffering in a much shorter time than the Pale Oil; loofine, phosphate of line, volatile fatty acids, and the elements of the bile, imparting the color to the oil, and deemed among its most active and essential principles, being invariantly present in much larger quantities than in the Pale Oils manufactured in most hard and a second principles, by their mode of preparation, are in a great measure deprived of these active properties. Lesing invariably submitted to exhibit and scrupious exemical analysis by Dr. Be Jongh, its genuineness, purity, and uniform strength, are ascertained and generated, and, as far as possible, as certain, recoller, and uniform result may be authorpated, when it is administered to the same patient, or in similar diseases of recommendences.

"If we we read it critically, it is difficult which to admire most, the grace or freshness of the style. The epulence of the writer's fance, and the tenderness of his heart are so interwoven that we know not which we fellow, as he leads us with bounding steps through landscapes fresh, green and vocal with nature, and warm and bright with grace. But e-ery gift of fancy and facility of style, is made the handroald to devout sympathy and godly aspiration. We cannot help thinking how happy such a heart must be, and how happy in the power to communicate the thoughts which are the sweet hereding of heaven's grace and earth's beauty in lovely barmony. Such a book as this, is a bouquet from God's gardens, called by one skilled in the botany of the skies."—[N. Y. Chronicke.

REPUBLIC OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

From The St. Louis Republican.
"This history possesses great merit, is written best of American histories."

From The Evening News.

"Those who have had the pleasure of reading this abty writen work, will at once appreciate this. Though a diversity opinions may exist respecting some of the views of the authowe have no doubt this work will be a standard of reference for agree and generations to come."

we have no doubt this work will be a standard of reference for sizes and generations to come."

Trom The Nemocratic Press, Philadelphia.

"It seems the very his of the times. One reads it with all the sharp scheidinde that a late desperate intrigue, heroic sudeavor, and constantly dangerons impendings produces."

From The United States Guaette, Philadelphia.

"The author's reverence for the name and fame of Washington seems now to be no less, or less cordishly given, than all the world deems just."

From The Eastern Argus, Portland.

"The work is therough and searching, and will be found interesting and valuable."

From The Boston Post.

"We are brought, by means of this excellent history, into closer communion with Washington, and gather a better insight into his motives, and conduct, and character, than can be obtained from other writings."

"The Easternal Recorder.

into his motives, and conduct, and character, than can be obtained from other writings."

"It is by far the fullest history of the times immediately subsequent to the Revolution tint has appeared."

From The Hoston Traveller.

"This fourth volume of Mr. Hamilton's work shows, with more effectiveness transever before shows, the extent the nature, and the effect of his father's labors as the Finance Minister of the Union. It is not only full of historical material, but it is history treeff. The work increases in value as it goes forward; and it is certain, the men who were most warm in condeming the earlier volumes, will be most forward in commending those which shall close it."

"So go forth, once more, brave book, as God shail speed thee; id wherever thou meetest, whether in peasant or in peer, with royal heart, tender and true, magnanimone and chivairous, earlin and dwell there; and help its owner to become (as thou not help him) a man, a Christian, and a gentleman, as Henry cocke was before him."—I from the Biographical Preface to rooke's "Fool of Quality." by the Rev. Charles Kingsley, support of "Hypatia," "Alton Looke," &c.

THE FOOL OF QUALITY.

By HENRY BROOKE.
With a Biographical Freface by the Rev. CHARLES KINGSLEY.
Two next 12mo volumes, cloth. Price $2. Hair call, gilt or and tique, $4.

[From the Introduction by the Rev. Dr. Strickland.]

"The republication of this novel by Wesley, and his high commendation of it, were variously received by the Methodists, and he not nnirequently was called upon to defond his course in this respect. On a certain occasion, in company with several of his preachers, among whom was Dr. Adam Clark and a Mr. John Easten, The Soci of Quality' came under review. Mr. Easton took occasion to speak in a condemnatory manner of the book, and in doing so, intended a results to Wesley for publishing it. After he had given full vent to his pious indignation, and expressed his holy herory, the following collequy ensued bedween the founder of Methodism and his scalous disciple:
"Did you read Vindex, John P aid Wesley, referring to an exceedingly humorous passage in the book.

"Yee, vir."

Did you read Damon and Pythias, John ?"

"Yee, Str."

"Bid you erry, John !"

"No. Str."

"Living as his eyes, as in utter astonishment, and classified his hends. Wesley exclaimed: "O, earth—earth—earth?"

"Easton was one of that class of men whose instincts were of the lew order—an excellent type of that species of mertality in which there was a complete triumph of matter ever mind—one 'in whose soul there was no mastal, and whose insuring or cited the commiseration of the sentimental Wesley."
